

SHAW REPORTS ON CURRENCY

Secretary of the Treasury Makes an Interesting Announcement in His Report.

GROWTH OF THE TRUST COMPANIES

Points Out Elements of Danger in This Class of Financial Institutions, and Suggests Means of Control.

[SPECIAL BY SCHIFFS-M'RAE.]

Washington, Dec. 8.—"Our currency system, though somewhat complicated, has been proved safe and reliable under every practical test. The exchange of gold for all forms of money issued or coined by the government, on demand, authorized by act of Congress approved March 14, 1900, removes every suggestion of public distrust or doubt. The system has one recognized weakness, however, it is non-elastic."

Leslie M. Shaw, Secretary of the Treasury, sent to Congress his annual report, from which the foregoing is a quotation. Secretary Shaw carefully and comprehensively covers each and every department under his jurisdiction, gives all details of expenditures and receipts, and makes several suggestions for improvement.

Need of Elasticity.
Relative to making the currency more elastic, a problem the bankers of the nation have been studying for years, the secretary declares the fact that national banks possess the power to increase circulation at will is an insufficient corrective. He says:

"Banks are not likely to use their last $100,000 reserve in the purchase of government bonds as a basis for an equal amount of currency, not available for reserve, but which increases to that extent their liabilities. On the contrary, banks sometimes retire their circulation and sell their bonds for the purpose of replenishing and reducing liabilities. During the summer months of the current year, bank reserves increased, and interest rates were correspondingly low, but this very plethora of money resulted in an increase of national bank circulation. When reserve money is plenty, interest rates low, and the price of bonds normal, it is profitable for national banks to maintain circulation."

The secretary declares that, so far as non-elasticity is concerned, he is unable to improve upon his suggestion a year ago, which was for remedial legislation so carefully worked out that it would in no wise "weaken that which is now stable," and inject no element "that will cause distrust or doubt."

Growth of Trust Companies.
Of especial interest to large cities are his suggestions about trust companies. He says that recently trust companies have grown much faster than national banks, recalling that "in Chicago the number of trust companies has increased in ten years from eight to twelve, while the number of national banks has decreased from twenty-one to twelve." He says:

"The capitalization of trust companies in Chicago in the same period has increased from $1,000,000 to $20,000,000, or 400 per cent, as against an increase of 25 per cent in the capitalization of national banks. Deposits in these trust companies have increased from $15,000,000 to $250,000,000 in ten years, and in national banks from $150,000,000 to $250,000,000, or an aggregate increase of $215,000,000 in trust companies, as against $150,000,000 in national banks, and an increase of 1,400 per cent in trust companies as against 115 per cent in national banks.

Element of Danger.
"It is manifest from the foregoing data that these institutions in our great cities, helpful as they have been to American development and commerce, unless conservatively managed, may become an element of danger to our financial system. They are already national in character, and several of them are of international influence."

"I suggest the propriety, therefore, of a law giving trust companies of large capitalization in large cities the privilege of incorporating under federal law, with corresponding supervision. If such right were extended, the more conservative would probably avail themselves thereof, and this would compel others to cultivate conservatism."

The secretary adds that it would not be necessary to extend to such trust companies the distinctive prerogatives of national banks, beyond the capacity of being designated financial agents of the government, "thereby justifying federal supervision." He says they should not be brought into competition with commercial banks, but should be required to keep "an appropriate, though relatively small, reserve within their own vaults, lest in times of financial distress their large deposits with national banks increase rather than diminish the evils of financial panics."

Discloses a Big Deficit.
The secretary says the revenues from all sources for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, were $684,214,374. The expenditures for the same period were $725,384,946, showing a deficit of $41,170,572. The sum of $50,000,000 was paid for the right-of-way of the Panama canal. Compared with 1903, the receipts for 1904 decreased $10,406,744, and there was an increase of $85,661,495 in expenditures.

Secretary Shaw says the money in circulation July 1 amounted to $2,519,142,860, a per capita circulation of $30.77. The percentage of gold was 44.12.

"The amount of interest-bearing debt, says the secretary, outstanding July 1, 1903, was $914,541,410, and July 1, this year, $895,157,440, a reduction of $19,383,970."

The secretary repeats his recommendations for improved customs service. He says independent ports have been established where supports tributary to a larger central port would have been sufficient.

"These tributary ports are, therefore, now maintained as independent ports on an unbusinesslike basis," he adds. He also urges "proper consolidation of small and expensive sub-ports dependent upon large and self-supporting ports."

DECLARES SENTIMENT IS AGAINST BOYCOTT

Indiana Labor Commission Says Public Never Favored This Method of Industrial Warfare.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 8.—In the introduction to his biennial report State Labor Commissioner McCormick declares the fact that the weekly wage law of 1898-99 was declared unconstitutional.

Speaking of the boycott, Mr. McCormick says: "It is gradually losing its effectiveness, owing to the fact that sentiment has largely crystallized against it."

He says that public opinion never approved of it as a method of warfare and that it is gradually passing into welcome decadence.

"Blacklisting, on the other hand, seems to be growing in favor in some industries," the report continues. "The railroads themselves, which originated the present form of blacklisting, have largely given it up, but other employers have begun to use it as a weapon of industrial warfare."

Concluding, Mr. McCormick says: "While the effectiveness of the method has not been wholly harmful to labor, the animus it has excited has been disconcerting to those who are striving for better relations between industrial force."

Toronto, Ont., Dec. 8.—The Ontario government is in communication with the state authorities of Ohio, Minnesota, Michigan and New York in connection with uniform fishing regulations for the border waters. It has taken the matter up with the chamber of commerce of Cleveland, which is anxious that some understanding should be reached with the Ontario authorities in time for presentation to the Ohio state legislature in January. A committee from the states named will confer with the Ontario commissioners at an early date.

[SPECIAL BY SCHIFFS-M'RAE.]
Rising Sun, Ind., Dec. 8.—Judge Cornet this morning overruled the motion for the discharge of the defendants in the Gillespie murder trial. The defense has filed a bill of exceptions to this ruling. The work of selecting the jury was then begun. James Gillespie demanded a separate trial by the jury being impaneled for that purpose.

LA FOLLETTE MAY BE THE CHOICE

Legislators Who Are To Meet in Madison This Week Have a Problem.

[SPECIAL BY SCHIFFS-M'RAE.]
Madison, Wis., Dec. 8.—At a conference of La Follette senators, to be held here next Saturday, it is not improbable that Gov. La Follette may be endorsed for United States senator. A powerful sentiment is springing up among his supporters to send him to the senate, and only the emphatic refusal from the governor will be able to allay it. Should a deadlock over candidates develop, as now seems probable, it would not be surprising if a stampede would be made toward La Follette which the executive would be practically unable to resist.

ARREST WHOLE FAMILY ON CHARGE OF MURDER

Little Girl of 8 Is Burned to Death, Young Prisoners Alleging It Was an Accident.

Alexandria, Ind., Dec. 8.—The entire Perkins family except the father was arrested in this city in connection with the burning of Nellie Maynard, aged 8, Sunday. The girl died Tuesday evening. Mrs. Perkins, the mother of the family; Charles Hogan, Rosa Perkins, aged 14; John, aged 12, and Elda, aged 10, were arrested. Hogan is an ex-convict, out on parole from Michigan City. Rosa partly admits burning the Maynard girl, but says it was an accident, following an attempt to frighten her with a burning shingle. Neighbors say it was a willful case of malice.

The story of the victim on her deathbed is that it was due to her resenting indignities offered her by boys. Hogan and Mrs. Perkins will be tried for unlawful cohabitation, after which the children will be tried for murder. The woman's husband, Hampton Perkins, has arrived from Elwood to prosecute the charge against Hogan and Mrs. Perkins.

NEW RULING
BY JUDGE RICKS

Illinois Justice Hands Down an Important Ruling Regarding Habeas Corpus.

TO DO AWAY WITH PRESENT ABUSE

Will Not Allow Errors on Part of Criminal Trial Judges To Be Considered in The Decisions.

[SPECIAL BY SCHIFFS-M'RAE.]

Chicago, Dec. 8.—In decisions covering two habeas corpus cases Chief Justice Ricks of the Illinois supreme court laid down rules putting an end to a popular belief in the legal profession, which had led to abuses of the habeas corpus for many years.

The questions involved in the Charles Freeman and Henry Hoedlke cases led the justice to assert that the failure of criminal trial courts to conform to statutory directions—or, in other words, an error—is not the proper basis for habeas corpus proceedings before a court of concurrent jurisdiction, but such matters should be taken up on a writ for review to a court of appeal.

The usual routine in Cook county under habeas corpus practice it appears, has been for attorneys to seek a court of concurrent jurisdiction as that before which a prisoner is being or has been tried. If the first judge denies the writ the practice permits the application to be made to as many more courts as the applicant may desire.

"After the court has determined that question," said Justice Ricks, "the prisoner has his remedy. But that is not to say that just any court he may apply to can determine what the law is."

The court holds that a question of law passed upon by the trial judge cannot be taken from him by means of the habeas corpus and passed along to a judge who disagrees with him upon the point, thereby releasing the prisoner.

The decision has spurred members of the bar to further efforts in favor of new statutes governing habeas corpus practice and the state attorney's office is pleased, as the rule established will prevent the wholesale delivery of prisoners.

While it is the general opinion of the members of the bar who are interested in the habeas corpus question that through this decision the point is well established, it is believed that it is the better discretion to have these propositions specifically set down in the statute books and provision made for an appeal by either side.

MRS. CHADWICK MAY LODGE

Unless Her Attorney Finds Bail Bonds for Fifteen Thousand Dollars, She Goes to Jail.

[SPECIAL BY SCHIFFS-M'RAE.]

New York, Dec. 8.—Mrs. Chadwick left the Hotel Bristol at eight-forty-five this morning in charge of Marshal Henkel and drove to the federal building where she was given a preliminary hearing before Commissioner Shields. When she arrived at the federal building the woman was in a fainting condition. Mrs. Chadwick soon recovered her composure and which she read the account of her arrest. Attorney Phillip Carpenter, who with Powers will represent Mrs. Chadwick, asked for a half hour's delay in the proceedings, as he wished to consult his client. After a conference the officials decided to fix bail at fifteen thousand dollars. Attorney Carpenter left to arrange for the bondmen.

Arrangements were reached for a deute affidavit here.

brief formal hearing and adjournment to Dec. 17th.

May Go to Tombs.

After the hearing Mrs. Chadwick returned to the state marshal's office where she swooned on a couch. She will remain in his office until this evening in order to give her attorney time to find bondsmen. If the bail is not forthcoming by four or five this afternoon Mrs. Chadwick will spend the night in the Tombs. A dispatch from Lorain county, Ohio, says the grand jury investigation of the Chadwick affair began this morning with the impaneling a jury by Judge Washburn. The jury is made up of prominent Elyria citizens. A Cleveland, Ohio, dispatch says Prosecuting Attorney Keller has received the following message from New York, signed Andrew Carnegie: "Never signed such notes. Have no notes out. Hope you can arrange to execute them." Arrangements were reached for a deute affidavit here.

Lawson Stampedes the Stock Market and Sends the Trusts' Prices Way Down.

[SPECIAL BY SCHIFFS-M'RAE.]

New York, Dec. 8.—Scenes of wild excitement occurred on the Stock Exchange this morning, the situation bordering on a panic. Lawson's prophecy of Tuesday was fulfilled. Annihilated stocks fell nearly ten points from last night's closing, selling down to 59. The United States steel common and preferred, sugar, Missouri Pacific, Erie, and Canadian Pacific are among the stocks which took the toboggan. Lawson's bulletin today advised holders of Amalgamated to sell to "your last share." He continued: "Roosevelt is beginning his work. It is tobacco today. When it gets to insurance and trust companies the business will begin."

GOSSIP FROM THE UNIVERSITY TOWN

INTERESTING BITS OF NEWS OF VARSITY DOINGS.

NEW FEATURES IN EDUCATION

Steady Growth of the University—Rivals Older Eastern Institutions

Madison.—The recent visit to the University of Wisconsin of the official party from the state of Georgia and the University of Georgia, is attracting national attention, and a number of editorial comments on the significance of the visit have appeared in the leading periodicals. The Outlook in a recent editorial refers to the visit as "an event of a national interest," and considers the University of Wisconsin as "probably unequaled in the strength of its hold upon the people and in the tangible and material benefits which it has conferred upon the commonwealth." "Wisconsin," it adds, "has seized upon the principle that research is of great strength to aid instruction, and has taken special advantage of the opportunities for fruitful research which the local field has offered, for example, in history, economics, geology, and agriculture." The Independent, of New York, speaks of the visit as "an interesting and significant event," and emphasizes the valuable object lesson of the practical returns to the whole state of liberality of appropriations, which the Georgians had. "In a single invention," the Babcock milk test, made by a professor in the Agricultural college, which brings to the farmers of Wisconsin a larger yearly return than the appropriations for the entire state university." Upon their return to the south, the party adopted resolutions in which they pay high tribute to the University of Wisconsin and its efficient management, concluding with the words, "We see what the concentrated labor of able men endorsed by the liberality of their state legislation can effect in making an institution of research and learning which directly benefits every citizen in the state."

Valuable Gift to University Library.
The library of the University of Wisconsin has just received, as a gift from Mr. John Kremer of Milwaukee, an exceedingly valuable special library on parliamentary government in politics in Germany and Italy. The library comprises over 500 volumes and 250 pamphlets, which were collected in Europe by Professor Paul S. Reinsch, and is valued at $800. This special library will give unusual opportunity for special investigation and research by advanced students in the departments of political science and history, two of the strongest departments of the graduate school of the university.

Primitive Music of the Southwest.
To listen to accurate reproductions by means of the phonograph of the weird Indian music, and Spanish songs, grave and gay, as sung by the Indians of Arizona, New Mexico, and the southwest was the unusual privilege given to the students of the University of Wisconsin this week, in connection with an interesting lecture on "Primitive Music of the Southwest," by Mr. Charles F. Lummis, the well known writer and traveler. It was one of a series of free lectures given annually at the university under the auspices of the university branch of the Archaeological Institute of America.

To Study Legislation.
A new course in the theory and practice of legislation will be given at the University of Wisconsin beginning this week, by Professor Paul S. Reinsch. After a preliminary course of lectures upon the organization and methods of procedure of the legislatures, the class is to be organized in the form of a legislative body. Adhering strictly to the practice of legislative assemblies, it will prepare and discuss bills upon questions of public importance. Committees will investigate the conditions in this state, and the legislative experience in other commonwealths, and will submit bills drawn with a view to meet the conditions in Wisconsin. The class will also study the methods of procedure of the legislature which will be in session after New Year, and follow certain important bills in their course through that assembly. It is intended in this way to make the students directly familiar with the processes of legislative action, and to give an insight into the manner in which economic and legal questions are dealt with in the course of legislation.

Regular Use of Hyomel Cures Most Stubborn Cases of Catarrh.
No other medicine gives such prompt relief as Hyomel in the treatment of catarrh.

The first breath of this remedy soothes and heals the irritated and smarting air passages, and the regular use for a few days or weeks will cure the most stubborn case. Some of the reports of those who have been cured of catarrh by Hyomel read like miracles.

John S. Gray of Redmond Hills, Pa., writes: "I am 52 years old and have been a sufferer with catarrh in the head for 25 or 30 years. I have doctored with many specialists and they all told me that the disease was incurable on account of my age. After using Hyomel a short time I was greatly benefited and can now say that I am entirely cured. It has been six months since I stopped using the remedy and I still remain cured."

The complete Hyomel outfit costs but $1.00, consisting of an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomel to last several weeks. This will effect a cure in ordinary cases, but for chronic and deep-seated cases of catarrh, longer use may be necessary, and then extra bottles of Hyomel can be obtained for 50c.

Probably the strongest evidence that can be offered as to the powers of Hyomel to cure catarrh is the fact that the Peoples Drug Co. will agree to refund the money if you say that Hyomel has not helped you.

has just awarded a medal to Professor Storm Bull of the College of Engineering of the University of Wisconsin, for the most meritorious paper presented before that society during the past year. The subject of Professor Bull's paper, which was delivered before the Western Society of Engineers in Chicago in November, 1903, and which has just been published in the proceedings of that body, was "The Use of Superheated Steam." The honor thus conferred upon Professor Bull is a most marked one, since the Western Society of Engineers is one of the most important organizations of members of the engineering profession in the country, and this paper was chosen from a large number which were presented before the society in its course of the year.

To Correspond With Belgian Students.
The authorities of the University of Leuven in Belgium have proposed to Professor W. A. Scott of the commerce course that the students of that institution correspond with the commercial students of the University of Wisconsin in order to familiarize the Belgians with English commercial correspondence and the Wisconsin students with the French business letter writing.

Frick, Danville, Wis.; secretary—Raymond Nequette, Lena, Wis.; treasurer—Francis Schwingel, Avoca, Wis.; marshal, Melvin D. Nelson, Sawyer, Wis.

TO DECREASE THE NUMBER OF WRECKS

The Northwestern Road Issues Order That Employees Be Given Plenty of Rest.

The management of the Northwestern road is taking extraordinary precautions not only to prevent long hours of labor in the operating department, but also to see to it that operating employees take needed rest. For years the company has had a rule that it shall not count against an employee if he demands rest, when he needs it, and now they purpose to do everything except to follow him to his bed to see that he gets necessary rest. The new regulations have been inaugurated on account of the public criticism that many railroad wrecks are caused by men working continuously so many hours as to impair their efficiency.

Although this has rarely if ever been the case, except in emergency, on the Northwestern lines, every precaution is to be taken against the possibility of such a contingency. From the general manager's office a circular has been issued addressed to all superintendents and yardmasters. It reads as follows:

See that a minimum time is absolutely afforded, train and engine crews for rest as follows:
Men ten hours or less on duty, eight hours' rest, minimum.
Men twelve hours on duty, ten more, twelve hours' rest, minimum.
Men fourteen hours on duty or more, twelve hours' rest, minimum.
Keep before the train dispatcher such record of movement of crews as absolutely will prevent an engine man or trainman from going out on a run without the full allotted time for rest.

Check this matter up personally to see that the rule is being carried out, examining reports periodically as to rest actually allowed.

HAS CORBIN PUT DAMPER ON LOVE?

Reported Engagement of a Janesville Girl and an Army Officer Not Announced.

Dame Rumor has it that a Janesville young lady has been casting loving eyes at an officer of Uncle Sam's army. Whether it is the glitter of the gold braid of the cavalry uniform or the man himself is not known but nevertheless an engagement is rumored. Major General Henry C. Corbin has recently made a recommendation that a law be passed by congress that no army officer should be permitted to marry until he has satisfied the secretary of war that he is in a financial position to support a family. In other words, the adjutant general of the department of the East would make the secretary of war the matrimonial agent of the "service." Perhaps this restraining opinion is responsible for the failure in the engagement announcement to appear. However, time will tell. The officer in question is understood to be a lieutenant and on this subject General Corbin says:

"I am firmly of the opinion," he says, "that no officer should enter the marriage relation without first getting the authority of the war department and that as a necessary condition thereto that his income after marriage will be sufficient to support himself and family, and, above all, if he is to live on his pay, he must be on honor that he is free from debt."

"Marriage of army officers who have made no proper provision for assuming the responsibility therefore is hurtful both to the army and to the officers themselves. To this broad statement there are, of course, exceptions, as there are to all broad statements, but the general fact remains that our army is overmanned."

Pay Not Enough for Family.
"The pay of a subaltern officer is barely enough for his proper support and the expenses of his equipment and uniform. If to this is added the inevitable expenses attached to a family, it is not only probable but almost certain that when an officer strikes his balance at the end of the year he will be behind, if he has no income but his pay."

"That a bachelor officer is more valuable to the service than a married man does not follow, nor do I wish to be understood as saying, but the married officer is less valuable if in marrying he has not exercised that prudence which should govern all transactions in life."

LEARNED TO RUN AT COUNTY JAIL.
"Cuckoo" Collins Got His First Training While Serving a Jail Sentence

W. H. Appleby, in conversation regarding Cuckoo Collins, now in jail here waiting trial, has the following to say: "Yes, I knew Collins back in 1888. He lived in various parts of the country and often trained in Beloit with John Kline for the many foot races in which he engaged. He learned his sprinting while doing eight months in the county jail. He used to take care of the sheriff's horse, taking him out each morning for a run."

"Did he ever throw any races in this region as he is charged with having done in the northern part of the state?" was asked.

"Yes, there was a story to that effect several years ago. It was said that he induced his old father to mortgage his house in the northern part of the county and put the money on him. He got another racer to come and run with him, and it was easy to make his father believe that he would win the event. Then it is said he threw the race and that the two runners went off and spent the money together. The father was killed accidentally a few years later."

BEGIN REAL WORK IN PREPARATION

Debating Preliminarily for Waukesha-Janesville Debate—Rusk Lyceum Work

Active preparatory work for the Waukesha-Janesville high school debate which will be held next March has started among the young men of either of the literary societies—the Rusk Lyceum and the Forum. Both have arranged for two debates on the question to be held at the next two meetings of the clubs. Each society has appointed a committee to confer with Superintendent Buell on the selection of a side in the question that has been submitted by the Waukesha school. The committees are: For the Lyceum, Orville Swift, Harvey Bailey and Jerome Davis; for the Forum, Walter Caemmerer, James Hogue and William Spohn. The first debates will be held in the separate society meetings next Monday evening and during the next week the conference will be held and selection of a side made. This will depend much upon the decisions rendered in the two societies on the preliminary debates. The question as submitted is: "Resolved, that the closed shop policy as advocated by the trades unions, is justifiable."

In Assembly Room.
The evening meeting of the Lyceum has been changed from Tuesday to Monday to accommodate several of the members who have to work on Tuesday evenings and as the Forum has secured the right of the science room for this evening of the week before this change was made, the Lyceum now meets in the assembly room. This practices the members in speaking in a large room and drills them to modulate the voice and strengthen it so that it can be heard by a larger assembly. The first debate on the question will be discussed on the affirmative side by Frank Phelps, Robert Jensen and Harvey Bailey and on the negative side by Clayton Fisher, Floyd Davis and Jerome Davis, all of whom are prominent candidates from the Lyceum for the school debating team. The second debate on the topic will be at the first meeting after the holiday termination which will be on the evening of Tuesday, January 2, 1905. Those who will speak are: Affirmative—Oscar Yahn, Jerome Davis and Floyd Davis; and negative—Thomas Mulligan, Frank Phelps and Harvey Bailey.

A lively debate was held at the last Monday night meeting on the subject of Chinese Exclusion, the affirmative upholding the protection of the American workman and the theory of the other immigration laws as right and the negative pleading for free entrance with "justice," freedom and "the principles of republican institutions" as their chief arguments.

WAREHOUSES ARE NEARLY ALL IDLE

They Are Also Waiting for Casing Weather—General Leaf Market Resultantly Slow

"More than with anything else the market is occupied with the question of supply. The demand for leaf is greater than ever before, business running without a hitch, but a lack of supplying the ever-increasing demand is staring the market in the face. But in spite of the self-evident and generally recognized shortage of supply prices are not moving upward and that's the bitter pill the market has to swallow, not, however, without energetic protest. It is strange, indeed, that raw material the shortage of which is a recognized fact, should not advance proportionally in price. But the peculiar conditions under which the leaf market is trading seems to put it under a kind of yoke to its customers. It would therefore appear that only manipulation from these conditions could give the market the advantage others enjoy when the raw material runs short. The chief trading done now is in Wisconsin. Sound packings and quick buyers though they cannot be had at a bargain. A keen foresight is also impelling large investments in old filler stock. For at a price the stock rules now it could not be duplicated in the near future. Sumatra and Havana markets are holding their own."

The above article was printed in the last issue of the U. S. Tobacco Journal under the heading, "The Cigar Leaf Market," and gives the conditions of the general market as they exist throughout the leaf dealing district. As the general supply of leaf is dependent upon Wisconsin the absence of casing weather in this vicinity, it can be seen, is responsible for the conditions now existing. Just when casing weather will come, if at all, is a question that no one can answer. Though the weather is not cold at the present the temperature is not yet high enough nor the atmosphere damp enough. Within three or four weeks from the time of the arrival of casing weather the tobacco warehouses would be running with large stocks.

AS TO COLDS

Feed a cold—yes, but feed it with Scott's Emulsion. Feeding a cold in this way kills it. You cannot afford to have a cough or cold at this season or any other. Scott's Emulsion will drive it out quickly and keep it out. Weak lungs are strengthened and all wasting diseases are checked by Scott's Emulsion. It's a great flesh producer.

We'll send you a sample free. SCOTT & BOWNE, 429 Pearl Street, New York.

If not complete forces and should the desired conditions come within next week the work of handling would be commenced by or shortly after Christmas and be at its height along some time in January.

Fireman Hengway was the victim of a peculiar accident in Rockford this morning. The bones were set and bandaged, and Hengway returned to this city. He will take a short lay off.

Race with Locomotive and Motor Car.
Press despatches say that a gasoline motor car recently built, for the Jamestown, Chautauque & Lake Erie Railway has proved to be a great success, when a preliminary test was made. The gasoline motor is a 150 h.p. engine, and when the initial trip was made by the officers and directors of the road, an ordinary steam locomotive was made to accompany it and in case the gasoline machine failed, the steam locomotive ran along a track practically parallel to the one on which the motor car moved. A run of about 12 miles was made, from Jamestown to Bemus Point, along the shore of Chautauque Lake. The distance was covered in 14 minutes, which included slowdowns for curves and poor track. The motor car traveled at about 60 miles an hour and incidentally ran away from the steam locomotive, which was doing its best to see that the motor car did not come to grief—Railway and Locomotive Engineering.

RYAN AWARDED FOOTBALL MEDAL

By a vote of the members and regular substitutes of the past season's high school football team, John Ryan who played left end and was chosen captain for next year and selected as the best player of this year to receive the medal offered by Rev. Denison at the beginning of the season. Ryan's work has been steady, sure and stellar throughout the year and has played all except a few minutes of one game when he was taken from the field on account of a bad knee. In the voting for the medal winner several other players received ballots but none tied with Ryan. Among them were: Senett, Galbraith, Carle, Caldwell and Feeley. In the selection of a captain there were also several other candidates. The medal will be presented by Rev. Denison in the near future.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, December 8, 1864.—Discharged.—The grand jury having completed their labors were discharged this forenoon.

Circuit Court.—In the case of A. P. Burpee against Milton Robinson, which occupied the attention of the court for nearly two days, the jury found for the plaintiff and assessed his damages at $50.

Siberian.—The weather of last night and today would have done credit to the latitude of Dr. Kane's Arctic explorations. In some parts of the city the thermometer indicated twenty-two degrees below zero! We are informed by gentlemen from the country that it reached twenty below on the prairies. Whew!

Quick Work.—The Milwaukee Sentinel says that it commenced receiving the president's message by special telegram at 2 p. m. and had it on the press entire in time to have it in the last (6 p. m.) edition. The Sentinel alone, of all papers in the city incurred the expense of receiving it by telegraph and had of course to pay alone what all the dailies should have paid together.

By the following from the Pearl

Ill. Star, it will be seen that the young men of our literary association are making strenuous efforts to furnish our citizens something choice in the lecture line:

Personal.—The president of the Literary Association of Janesville, Wis., was in our city yesterday. We understand that he came to engage the Rev. John C. Abbot to deliver some lectures before that association.

Colonel Osborne, commanding a negro regiment at Vicksburg, writes that he has lately gone on an expedition with twelve hundred men and four pieces of artillery, and captured one thousand beef cattle, four hundred men, and fifty horses and mules, seven hundred thousand dollars' worth of corn stored at Woodville, Miss., and destroyed the telegraph for miles, captured half a dozen rebel mills, with important information; also two hundred and fifty stands of small arms; three pieces of artillery, one caisson, two hundred and fifty rounds of fixed ammunition, eighty-two prisoners of war, one captain, two lieutenants, killed fifty-eight rebels including one major and one lieutenant and only lost two killed and five slightly wounded.

Coming Attractions.

"Human Hearts."

"Human Hearts." Till we have reflected on it, we are scarcely aware how much the sum of human happiness is indebted to the stage. We acquire cheerfulness and vigor from mere association with our fellow men in the theatre, and from the looks of happy expectancy radiating from our neighbors' countenances, inspired by the anticipation of prospective enjoyment of a good, clean, wholesome drama, well acted and properly presented.

Such, at least, is the idea brought forcibly to mind in gazing over an audience assembled to witness W. E. Nankerville's great production "Human Hearts," aptly described as the "forever evergreen success."

"Human Hearts" is a play that invariably appeals to all that is best in man's nature, and uplifts him from the sordid cares and petty worries of daily life and trouble. The story of "Human Hearts" is clean, wholesome and intelligible to everyone. There is no suggestion of vulgarity in any of its acts; but a story of convincing strength is told by the author, in a manner that appeals irresistibly to all classes of theatre goers.

The enormous success of "Human Hearts" during the past nine years, is a direct refutation of the idea entertained by so many theatrical managers, that sensationalism and criminal adjuncts are necessary to a play to assure its success with the public. Such plays die out as soon as the public interest wanes. Not so with a drama possessing the merit of "human hearts." The sense of life and corded such a play is not dependent on a momentary interest, excited by some crime, but on the firm, solid basis of humanity and human feelings. It touches our heart strings, arouses our latent better instincts, and makes us feel kinder towards our fellow man, for having witnessed it. "Human Hearts" will be presented this season with an especially strong company of players, and the same fidelity to scenic and mechanical detail that made its former visits notable. The engagement is for next Tuesday evening.

Strikes and lockouts are barred, and union workmen will be employed, and an increase in wages is granted.

"Every door is barred with gold, and opens but to golden keys." This is merely another way of saying that store-advancing which sells goods does cost money, but as people do not generally throw away money, it must, certainly be a good investment.

EUROPEAN TOURISTS.

Our counsel at Liverpool writes that there is an increasing number of British people and Europeans generally who go to the United States as tourists. He says "It is a common mistake to suppose that the British people do not travel. As a matter of fact they are great travellers, but the habit has been to take their holidays either in their own country or on the continent. Formerly they seldom thought of going to the United States simply as a holiday, but there is a marked change in this respect."

This is a gratifying announcement, especially as there has been some disappointment that the St. Louis exhibition of this year did not attract the large number of foreign tourists that it had been hoped it would have. It would be a good thing all around if a large number of the European tourists came to this country. Not because we seek to turn the United States into a resort for tourists and to depend for our business activities on the money which tourists may spend here, but because every tourist who visits the United States will be in large measure an agent for American products when he returns home, and also a messenger of peace and good-will between this country and others. It is a good thing that so many of our own people visit European countries, though it would be still better if they varied the European tour with an occasional trip across their own country. Too many Americans know more of London, Paris and Switzerland than they do of Colorado and California.

SLAVE TO ITS DEBTORS.

The president of a bank in Ohio which has closed its doors in consequence of bad loans made to a woman whose name is now filling many columns of the newspapers, in explaining the failure, said:

"When this had been going on for some time she gained my confidence, and I let her in on the bank's money. All of this money was not given at one time. At first they were very small amounts that she obtained. These sums kept accumulating and she kept asking for more money until I was in so deep that I could not refuse. I had to give her more money in order to keep the loans that I had made from being lost. All the time I was hoping that she would stop but in a position to pay."

This is a typical illustration of a way in which a bank may become tied up to its borrowers and absolutely depend upon them. Before the lender has loaned his money the borrower is in the position of an applicant. After the lender has loaned his money he becomes in a large degree at the mercy of the borrower. This is especially true when the loan is of a doubtful or hazardous character. When a bank loans its money to promote some new enterprise it has become in a measure a partner in that enterprise. If it continues to loan money to it, it becomes so heavily involved that to call its loans would perpetuate the failure of the concern, in which case the bank would lose all that it invested. The security of a bank therefore depends upon the character of its loans. Find out the alliances of the bank and you discover its source of strength or weakness. Apply this principle upon a large scale, and a fact of great significance is reached. Are the banks in any one community more interested in promotion and speculation than they are in clearing the world's commerce and providing for the legitimate needs of trade? Then a situation has developed which may or may not be dangerous, but which is at least radically unsound. Let the banks be more involved in the market for securities than they are in commercial transactions, and they become in large measure the servants of speculation, and in time of stress and storm may find it difficult to break away from these alliances.

THE SUGAR INDUSTRY.

In Wednesday's edition will be found a very interesting and instructive article on the beet sugar industry in this country. It is known as the "infant industry," and through lack of experience is undergoing the same experience as every other new enterprise.

It attracts more widespread attention than almost any other industry, because so many people are directly interested. A beet sugar factory, to be a success in this country, must receive the support year after year of at least 1,000 intelligent farmers, who are willing to cultivate, not a large field of beets, indifferently, but a few acres well.

There isn't a farmer in Rock county who cannot raise from five to ten acres every year, on well fertilized soil, at a profit of from $50 to $75 per acre. This will not make him rich, but it will give him a nice bunch of ready money at a season of the year when he needs it.

The quarter million dollars now being paid out by the new factory is all the argument necessary. A Janesville banker said, the other day, "The farmers all have money this year. Usually they are borrowers when taxes are due, but now they have ready cash and it is all on account of the beet crop." This tells the story in a nut shell.

While it is true that some farmers are disappointed this year over the yield of the beet crop, this was to be expected, and is no cause for discouragement. The same conditions exist concerning tobacco. The yield of any crop depends very largely upon the richness of soil and intelligent and faithful culture. There are many men who can cultivate forty acres of corn more easily and better than they can handle five acres of beets. The average farmer is not a good gardener and the beet is a garden product. It requires patience and painstaking work, much of which has to be done by hand, but that the crop can be made to pay is not a question of doubt.

It will be noticed in the article referred to that of the 20 factories in Michigan 11 are idle this year. Michigan has been growing beets and making sugar for 10 years. Many improvements have been made in factory building and this year account for some of the failures, but they are principally due to the lack of intelligent culture on the part of the farmers.

When the industry was first started it looked like a gold mine and beets were planted on all kinds of soil, with the notion that they could be cultivated as easily as corn. Many crops were failures, and the growers became disgusted.

Rock county will not repeat this experience, for the first crop averages close to 15 tons per acre, and the season was not the most desirable. Next year's crop will make a better showing and the new industry will be a success for both the farmers and owners.

Of course the Chadwick case can never get into melodrama. It is too weirdly improbable.

Naturally the tallest man in Indiana will have strong claims on that United States senatorship.

Secretary Morton's idea appears to be that a big navy is a sort of vaccination against war.

Japan is finding that it is one thing to take a hill and quite another matter to hang on to it.

Fortunately the Igorrotes do not need to fear that any fire on the Pike will destroy their wardrobe.

After you have discussed the message at length with friends it will be just as well to sit down and read it.

Get out your microscope and see if you can find anything about tariff revision in the president's message.

Having such a knack for borrowing things, Mrs. Chadwick may have borrowed Andrew Carnegie's signature, also.

Speaker Cannon has no doubt but that he will be able to handle all the bad boys in congress with his gavel.

It does not appear from the records that Mrs. Chadwick at any time succumbed to the spell of the simple life.

Carnegie may do things differently now, but when he was younger he was not in the habit of signing notes in his sleep.

Up to date, no American has reported that "Kogbi" would be a good name for the united kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

After this painful experience perhaps Cleveland bankers will be a little more inclined toward safe, sane and conservative banking.

Uncle Joe Cannon's plans for economy will look pretty until the seekers after river-and-harbor appropriations get through with them.

It does not trouble Kaiser Wilhelm to look down the business end of a deficit, for he knows that his subjects dearly love to pay taxes.

Probably Mrs. Chadwick felt that she had a financial reputation to sustain or she might occasionally have borrowed something less than $5,000.

With Gen. Miles as adjutant-general of the state, Boston will feel almost safe the next time a foreign foe gets within 2,000 miles of this continent.

President Roosevelt wishes to make Washington so beautiful and good that all the people will want to go there when they die.

Japan has the key to Port Arthur, but cannot find the keyhole.

All France is a nation of stand-paters when it comes to the Joan of Arc issue.

Mrs. Chadwick did not have to resort to borrowing to get her nerve, anyhow.

Now that congress is sitting once more those members who have just finished running may have a chance to take a rest.

There is nothing to indicate that the Dingley tariff views the renaissance of congress with anything but complacency.

As President Diaz is serving his seventh term he is glad to see that no anti-eight term sentiment is developing in Mexico.

Just at present rural free delivery may cause a deficit in the postoffice department, but it produces a lot of comfort and contentment in the farmer's home.

PRESS COMMENT.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The trouble with a good many wives is the fact that instead of being satisfied with being their husbands' better halves they want to be the whole thing.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: St. Louis can still enjoy the quiet pleasure of going out to see the mighty shell of what was once the greatest of international expositions.

Marion Advertiser: We doubt if there is another town in this state where all the inhabitants are so social and friendly toward one another as they are right here in Marion.

Sheboygan Journal: An Appleton rag picker has just found $100 in an old hunting jacket. Readers of the journal which notes its paper from the Appleton mills, may often find $10 and $20 bills labeled in its pages if they search carefully.

Evening Wisconsin: James J. Jeffries should stick to his determination to give up pugilism and be the only retired champion. The sporting world needs an exhibition of commonsense among the heavyweights who have heretofore persisted in trying to remain champion for life, only to be knocked out by age or by disputation resulting from over-confidence.

Madison Journal: The county of Burnett, in northern Wisconsin, which carries in its township names those of Garfield, Lincoln, Blaine, Jackson, Roosevelt, La Follette and Rusk, has just added another to the galaxy by dividing the town of Rusk and naming the newly created town "Dewey."

Stoughton Hub: A good many people in Wisconsin—not a majority, perhaps, but a very respectable minority—would like to have a bill passed by the legislature this winter, which would put into the list of penal offenses the modern game known as football. The season's record shows no less than fifteen fatalities in the United States since October first on the football gridiron, besides scores of serious injuries. It is a bad business and ought to be eliminated. We hope to see the Wisconsin legislature enact a law prohibiting absolutely the wicked game of football.

Portland Oregonian: The "vision box" as auxiliary to telephone service will prove a blessing otherwise, according to circumstances. To the extent that it liberates the impertinent puncher on the "party line" to the subscriber who pays for service and is entitled to it, it will be an instrument of a long-needed and greatly desired reform. The man, however, who is called from his bath or bed to answer the summons of his telephone, the weary housewife who has not yet found time to brush her hair, and the disheveled dandy who wants above all things to look her best to the swain who says sweet things to her "over the phone," will hesitate before taking down the receiver and turning on the searchlight.

Bloomington (Ind.) Star: The same lady who said she believed no heathen could be saved used the expression "Gee!" the other night. It had never occurred to her that this was taking the name of the Lord in vain, and probably four of the many who indulge in such sugar-coated profanity realize that they are swearing. What is "Gee" though but a euphemism of "Jesus." As we have said in these columns before, "Dear Me," is nothing but the Latin "Deo Meo," (My God); "For goodness sake" is only "For God's sake"; "For land sake" is "For Lord's sake"; "Dart it" is "God rot it"; "Judas Priest" is "Jesus Christ"; "Golly," "Gosh," "Gorry," etc., are only corruptions of "God"; "Damn it," "Dash it," "Ding it," "Blame it," etc., are only variations of "Damn it." In short there is probably not an expression of this sort that cannot be traced back to an oath for its origin. Notwithstanding this you will every day hear people using them, thoughtlessly, who would be terribly shocked by a genuine oath.

Fond du Lac Reporter: There never has been a presidential election after which the electoral vote of the minority party has been cast for the successful candidate. It should not be so cast now, and it will not be. Signal to the democracy defeat has been this year history shows that the party once achieved a more complete victory than that of the republican party in the recent election. In 1820 the democratic candidate for president, James Monroe, carried every state in the union and thus had a unanimous vote in the electoral college. There was one dissenting vote, and that was cast by a Monroe elector in the state of New Hampshire. The dissenting elector appears to have been actuated by a sentiment exactly the reverse of the one through which it is asked now that democratic electors shall vote for Roosevelt. He explained his vote for John Quincy Adams on the theory that it would not be good policy to have a president elected by the unanimous vote of the electors chosen by the people. His argument was that there should not be any such thing as unanimity in an election in a free country, and there should always be a record of opposition to the choice of a president, though it were but that of a single vote.

Where Racing Manners Win.

Manners are becoming more and more important to the success of harness horses that are expected to race in good company and make any sort of a showing. The overanxious trotter or pacer will take so much out of himself in scolding that a horse of less speed than he himself possesses will beat him handsily before the race is ended. The horse that cannot be placed at the will of his driver after the word is given will not win any race worth talking about. Neither will the horse of opposite temperament—the sort that must be "reefer" and rattled from start to finish. The winning trotter must have ambition enough to beat the other horses in the race, speed enough to meet them on equal terms in that particular, and the willingness to let his driver decide when the brush for the front shall be made. That sort of horse is a rare bird, and when you find one and expect him to win three or four races in a row you must add to his other good qualities those of being a good shipper, a first-class feeder and the ability to stand a change of track and water every week.—Los Angeles Times.

No Credit in This Pupil. Miss Harriet Hosmer, the noted American sculptor, was talking at her Watertown residence about celebrities she had known. Of a certain noted New Yorker she said:

"He was an awkward dancer, but he told me once that he had taken dancing lessons in Boston. His teacher was a charming old Frenchman, a true artist; and when he came to leave Boston he said to the old man: 'I am going back to New York now, monsieur, and if there is any favor I can do for you there I shall be only too glad to serve you.' 'The aged teacher, with an embarrassed smile, replied: 'I will take it as the greatest accommodation, sir, if you will tell me one of whom you learned to dance.'"

World's Largest Monolith. London Engineering illustrates and describes the largest monolith yet built. Two of these structures form the foundations for the roundheads at the entrance of the new Midland Railway Company's harbor at Heysham, in Morecambe bay. The roundheads are three hundred feet apart, and only a short distance removed from the main channel formed by Heysham lake. They are built on monoliths, which constituted one of the most interesting features of the works, for, being fifty-five feet in diameter, they were the largest constructed in connection with harbor works.

Costume of Chinese Women. The Chinese garments worn by the native females are exactly similar to those worn by the native males, consisting simply of blouses and trousers. The trousers are fastened with a tight ligature around the waist and the blouse or jacket is worn loosely, and reaching slightly below the hips, is not tightened or fastened in any way at the bottom.

Large Sea Gull Colony. A colony of sea gulls, supposed to be the largest in the United States, occupies about fifty acres of dead spruce forest at the southern end of Great Duck island, on the titer edge of Penobscot bay. It is an ideal spot, isolated, far from the mainland, and occupied only by the persons who take care of the lighthouse and one solitary fisherman.

She Knew Her Hubby. An English writer tells of a poor woman of London who wondered why the Lord permitted her worthless husband to live. "I suppose," she said, "the Lord has an idea that he'll repent, but I know better."

RARE SCENES OF CHILDHOOD DAYS

"CUCKOO" COLLINS WANTED TO SHOW THEM

TO HIS FRIEND FROM BUTTE

Examination of the Two Men Charged with Handling Fraudulent Paper Commenced Today.

In municipal court this morning was commenced the examination of "Cuckoo" Collins and James S. Logan, charged with trying to secure money on fraudulent drafts. District Attorney Jackson appeared for the state and Fred Burpee represented the defendants. Acting Chief Brown was called to the stand and gave testimony concerning the arrest of the two men and the finding of the four drafts in their room at Smith's hotel.

Collins' Childhood Scenes
C. H. Babcock, clothing merchant at Edgerton, stated on the stand that he had known Collins thirty years. He told the particulars concerning the fitting out of Collins with $11.75 worth of clothes and Logan's rendering of the $500 draft. When it was found that the draft would not be accepted at the bank without inquiry at Butte, Montana, he testified that Collins took off all his fine raiment and resumed his old clothes. Landlord J. F. Sweeney testified that a night or two before the incident at Edgerton occurred Collins introduced Logan with him at the Grand hotel, stating that he was taking Logan with him to Edgerton to look over the scenes of his (Collins') childhood and that Logan had run out of ready cash. Mr. Sweeney refused his request to cash a $500 draft.

Cashier Wright Talks
Cashier Wright stated that when he examined the draft presented to Mr. Babcock he found that it was not drawn on the bank of New York named as correspondent of the Butte, Montana, bank, nor was the name of the cashier given in the directory. The draft was printed on cheap paper, whereas it was the custom of the western banks to use finely lithographed stationery. He accompanied Logan to the telegraph office but Collins appeared on the scene and remonstrated with Logan against paying $1.12 for a message to Butte. Thereupon Cashier Wright cancelled Mr. Babcock's endorsement of the draft and handed it back to Logan. Several of the state's witnesses were not present and the examinations was adjourned to Saturday afternoon.

K. A. KILLAM AT ANNUAL MEETING
Superintendent of the Poor Farm—Read a Paper at the Gathering.
At the annual meeting of the superintendents of insane asylums in the state held in Milwaukee yesterday Superintendent K. A. Killam of the Rock county asylum delivered a paper on "The Asylum Garden and the Bill of Fare." Mr. Killam argued that for the good health of the patients it was advisable that those who are able should work in the garden. He thought that this would be a benefit to their health and to the surroundings of the asylum. Miss Margaret Thomas of the Marathon county asylum even went farther than Mr. Killam, and proposed the introduction of entertainments to add to the comfort and enjoyments of the inmates. A committee was also appointed to look after legislation in the coming session of the legislature with the end of establishing an epileptic colony in the state, and obtaining an appropriation to support it.

WAS FOUND DEAD IN PADDED CELL

JACK BROWN BREATHED HIS LAST THIS MORNING

DELIRIOUS WITH FEVER

He Was Removed From Riverside Hotel to the County Jail Yesterday—Left Insurance to Sister

Jack Brown died in the county jail between seven and eight o'clock this morning. Sheriff Appleby visited his cell at seven to see if he would have some breakfast. Brown was sleeping at that time and placing a hand on his forehead the sheriff detected symptoms of high fever. Dr. Woods arrived at ten minutes of eight and when he and the officer again visited the cell they found the man, though still warm, had ceased to breathe.

Throes of Delirium
The man was formerly employed at Horatio Nelson's livery barn. Last Saturday he was taken violently ill at the Riverside hotel, and his condition became worse during the next few days. Much of the time he was delirious and on these occasions he wrecked furniture and drove his fists through windows and looking glasses. At those times it required several men to hold him in his bed and yesterday the hotel authorities called on the sheriff to take charge of him. Drs. Pember and Woods were called to examine him yesterday. According to their diagnosis he was suffering with meningitis, an inflammation of the membranes of the brain. Under the circumstances there seemed to be nothing to do but allow him to remain in the jail, for a time at least, as it was not believed that the hospital would receive him.

In the Padded Cell
Drugs to quiet the patient and produce sleep were administered but seemed to have no effect. His brother, Jim, agreed to stay in the cell with him last night. About midnight, however, the prisoner became so violent that it was deemed advisable to remove him to the padded cell. He raged and threw himself against the bars of his cell. At that time he seemed to be entertaining wild, delirious visions. After he was put in the padded cell, however, he appeared to quiet down and the brother finally departed.

Funeral on Saturday
Deceased was thirty-nine years of age and is survived by two brothers, James and Edward, the former living in the city and the latter on Racine street about a mile from town, and two sisters—Mrs. Dora Holland of Fond du Lac and Miss Kittle Woods of Boston. He was married but had some time ago been separated from his wife for some time. Life insurance amounting to $270 he left to the Fond du Lac sister. The funeral services will be held from St. Patrick's church, Saturday morning at nine o'clock.

FRANK THOMPSON DIES IN HOSPITAL

For Twenty-Seven Years Porter at the Myers House—Has Been Seriously Ill.

After a very serious illness Frank Thompson passed away this morning at the Palmer Memorial hospital at about eight o'clock, as the result of an operation performed early in the week. The deceased was one of the best known and well liked citizens of Janesville and for twenty-seven years was porter at the Myers hotel, where he was employed until about a year ago when it was closed under the management of Ed. Johnson. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, who resides on Gold street. Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 9:15 from the St. Patrick's church.

Mrs. Mary Marsden
Tomorrow from the house, No. 2 Hickory street, at 2 o'clock will be held the funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. Mary Marsden. Rev. Henderson officiating. Mrs. Marsden was born in Connecticut in 1867 and has lived in this city nearly a score of years. There are left to mourn: a husband, George Marsden, and four children, John, Ethel, George and Ronald, besides a great many friends by whom she was respected and loved. Interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

Jacob Judson White
Jacob Judson White, an old time resident of Rock county, died at the home of his son, Edward White, in Madison on November 22. Mr. White came to Rock county in 1841 and lived here until a few years ago when he went to Madison where he has made his home with his son until the time of his death.

Charles Tew
Charles Tew, aged seventy-five years, died at his home in the town of Plymouth on Saturday last. Mr. Tew came to this country from Germany in 1885. The deceased leaves to mourn his loss a wife and four children, and one brother, Frederick Tew of Plymouth. The interment was at Plymouth cemetery.

AN HEIRLOOM PRESENTED TO THE LATE PETER MYERS
Gold Headed Cane Given Him by Prominent Citizens in 1870; Few Living.

Mr. Peter L. Myers has just been presented by his mother, Mrs. Julia Myers, with the gold headed cane which was presented to his father, the late Peter Myers, in July of 1870 on the completion of the first opera-house he built. There are fifty-two names on the list of donors, many of whom have gone to their last resting place years ago. Among those who are now living and contributed to the gift are Hiram Merrill, John Watson, John Winans, J. B. Casady, E. S. Carpenter, J. M. Bostwick, H. Richardson, Rogers and Hutchinson. Charles Holt, and C. B. Thomsen. The cane is a beautiful one and elaborately engraved with the date and name of the recipient.

FAMOUS DACHSHUND WAS SOLD TO A MONROE MAN
Dave Brown Disposed of His Canine to J. J. Horen Yesterday.

"Bismark," called "Shorty" for short, has shaken the dust of Janesville from his four paws, and the canine society of Monroe welcomes him to its bosom. The dog was owned until yesterday by Dave Brown and had the distinction of being the only representative of the royal dachshund race in the Beaver city. When he first arrived in Janesville the dog had a twin brother, from which he could not be distinguished. After a time, either "Shorty" or his twin brother died. The owner has never been able to definitely determine which. J. J. Horen of Monroe is the new owner, coming into possession yesterday.

JANESVILLE MAN HOLDS AN UNDISPUTED RECORD NOW
Frank Gray Catches Largest White Bass Ever Caught at Long Beach.

The following dispatch from the San Francisco Examiner will interest many Janesville residents:
Long Beach, Dec. 1.—Many fish are being taken by rod and reel off the pier. Frank Gray this morning caught the biggest white bass ever caught here with rod and reel, the fish tipping the beam at forty pounds. Hall-but, rock bass and occasionally a yellowtail and other deep-water fish are caught, while mackerel in plenty furnish the excitement for anglers who prefer to fish for the smaller varieties.

TRUNKS GOT TO DEPOT BUT NOT ON THE TRAIN
Buckboard Broke Down, Horse Ran Away, Bus to Rescue, But Not in Time to Check Baggage.

It was strenuous work for Nels Anderson and Slim Burdick this morning to get two trunks to the depot, but their work was in vain. Though the train had not started there was not time to get the necessary checks. Nels Anderson with a buckboard was on his way to the depot to put the articles of baggage on the 9:20 train and as he turned the corner near the Y. M. C. A. one side of the hills gave way, pulling the wagon to one side of the road and searing the horse so that with a jump it tore the other side loose. When free the animal pulled Anderson over the dashboard and ran down North High to Wall street and down into a yard near the Presbyterian church. The wagon was thrown up over the curb and onto the sidewalk along the side of the Y. M. C. A. building. Slim Burdick, who happened to be passing with the Myers house bus, was called and the trunks were loaded on and taken to the depot but not in time to catch the train. Further than the breaking the hills no damage was done.

LARGEST TURKEY EVER SEEN HERE

JANESVILLE YOUNG LADY WON PRIZE BIRD.

WEIGHS FIFTY-TWO POUNDS

Was the Largest Turkey Ever Raised in the State of Minnesota—A Prize Winner.

Hanging in front of Scofield's meat market on North Main street is a fifty-two pound turkey. It is the largest fowl of its species ever shipped into the city, in fact it is the largest turkey ever raised in the state of Minnesota and the prize winner at the Minnesota state fair and at the Minneapolis poultry show. This turkey is the property of a Janesville young lady who, for reasons of modesty, has asked that her name not be used in connection with the story.

Honestly Won
The turkey is honestly the trophy of the skill of the modest young lady and was shot by her at the distance of two hundred and seventy-five yards with a rifle while on a recent visit to Minneapolis. In life the turkey was the prize bird of Minnesota and as such won the two premiums of the year—the state fair and the Minneapolis poultry show. It then became the property of the Long Meadow Gun club, located ten miles from Minneapolis, and was designed for a grand feast of the club members by its owner.

Placed As Target
At a dinner party given in honor of the Janesville young lady the subject of the turkey was brought up and the owner laughingly offered to place it out in the rice field as a target for the ladies to shoot at. The challenge was accepted and the successful competitor, lady who shot the bird with a rifle at the distance of two hundred and seventy-five yards. To the victor belong the spoils and the turkey was shipped to Janesville to its present owner.

JOHN BURTBy FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS

Author of "The Kidnapped Millionaire," "Colonel Monroe's Doctrine," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1902, BY FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS. All rights reserved. COPYRIGHT, 1903, BY A. J. DREXEL HIDDLE.

"It all happened so quick I couldn't do a thing," Sam explained. "The second shot fired by Morris just missed—some one else—some one Jim was tryin' to save—an' went through the top of Mr. Hawkins' hat. Morris was dead before he struck the floor."

The door opened and a grave-faced surgeon entered the room.

"Miss Carden may see Mr. Blake for a few minutes," he said. "In the dimly lighted room Jessie Carden saw two figures—she propped up with pillows so that only the head and arms showed against the white linen. The curling, black locks fell back from the pale brow, and the handsome face seemed chiseled in purest marble."

"You are very good to come at this hour," the sufferer said. "I spoke to you this evening of my dear friend from California. Miss Carden, allow me to present him. God bless you both!"

And thus they met, after the weary flight of years. Tenderly laying Blake back on the pillows, John clasped Jessie's hands and looked in her face.

"John!"

"Jessie!"

"Take her in your arms, John! Don't mind me. She loves—"

His voice died with a whisper, and, with a long-drawn sigh, he closed his eyes.

"He's dying! Call the doctor!" exclaimed Jessie, fear and pity chasing the love light from her eyes.

"Don't send for him, I'm all right now," pleaded Blake, opening his eyes.

"Let me lie here and talk to you. The sight of you two is better than all the drugs or instruments. I have something to tell you—Miss Carden."

"You promised not to talk," interrupted John Burt, with a look at Blake which had all the effect of a command.

"Let me say just a word!" he exclaimed. "To see you two together, and to hold your hands in mine after all that has happened, gives me new courage and renewed ambition."

The subdued sound of conversation came from the adjoining room. All of Blake's faculties seemed abnormally acute.

"Is not that Edith's voice?" he asked.

"She is in the other room," said Jessie.

"Let her come in," pleaded Blake. John made a gesture of disapproval.

"I should like to see her, but you know best, I suppose, John," he said. Dr. Harkness entered the room and signaled to John that the interview must end. Blake gallantly raised Jessie's hand to his lips.

"Good-bye, until I'm better," he said, almost gaily. "You and John have saved my life."

John escorted Jessie to the door, whispered a few words and returned to Blake's side.

"You're a god, John!" said Blake, in a low tone. "You are the only man in the world worthy the love of such a woman."

It is merciful to draw the curtain over the two hours which followed. At last a moment came when the grave face of Dr. Harkness was touched with a smile of professional pride, as he drew from an incision a flattened, jagged piece of lead. The patient glanced at it with pain-distorted eyes, and then sank into a sleep, the awakening from which meant so much in deciding for life or death.

CHAPTER XXXIV.The End.

Peter Burt stood by the gateway and shaded his eyes with his hand as he gazed down the road. Two weeks before that day he had received his first letter from John. It briefly and modestly recited the story of his struggles and of his success, and ended with an account of the tragedy which resulted in the death of Arthur Morris and the wounding of Blake.

The old-fashioned clock had sounded the midday hour, and Peter Burt looked beyond the turn of the road, where the yellow-brown of dust had

EVEN THOUGH NEARLY INCREDIBLE.

"For twenty years I suffered with piles, sometimes being confined to my bed for days at a time. The relief received from doctors, both in the United States and Mexico was temporary and more frequently I received no relief; other medicines had no effect; it was a continual drag; I was fit for nothing. I finally tried Pyramid Pile Cure; first application was magical; I could not believe I was awake next morning. I experienced a relief I had not known for twenty years."

"One box cured me, but not believing myself cured I bought two more and they are still in my trunk. I first used this remedy in July, 1902; have had no occasion to use it since. The world should know of Pyramid Pile Cure. I have no words to express its merits." E. A. Leonard, Nueva Calle de San Antonio de las Huertas No. 5, City of Mexico.

Pyramid Pile Cure is in the form of a suppository, which is admitted to be the best form of treatment for piles. It comes in direct contact with the painful tumors and does its work quickly and painlessly. It is sold by druggists generally, for fifty cents a package and there is no other remedy "just as good." Write Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their little book describing the cause and cure of piles, as it is sent free for the asking.

quilted the green of foliage. Responding to the touch of a whip a spirited team of horses dashed ahead as they reached the summit of the hill.

Sam Rounds was driving, and a stranger to Peter Burt was beside him. John Burt and Jessie were in the rear seat.

"God is very good to us, John," said Peter Burt, as he took his grandson's hand and looked, through glad tears, into his face. His stern old face grew tender as he turned to Jessie Carden.

"An old man's blessing on your pretty head," he said, gently touching the folds of her hair with his huge palm. "You are very beautiful, my daughter, and it is God's will that you shall be happy. I am glad to see you again, Samuel."

He looked searchingly at the silent man in the front seat.

"I do not know you, sir," he said, extending his hand, "but any friend of my grandson's is welcome to such hospitality as a Burt can offer."

"Aye, aye, sir; Captain Burt! My name's Hawkins—John Hawkins, and I'm coming ashore," said the gentleman, stepping from the carriage.

Peter Burt grasped him by the shoulders and stared into his face.

"Jack Hawkins! Jack Hawkins, of the Segregansett! The dead has come to life, and God is good to his servant!" Forgive me, Hawkins, as he has forgiven me!

"Nothing to forgive, Captain Burt!" exclaimed John Hawkins heartily, as he grasped the patriarch's hand. "You dropped me off the Segregansett in the right place and at the right time. Destiny orders all these things, and old destiny and I are chums. I'll tell you all about it, Captain Burt, when we have lots of time."

Linked arm in arm the old captain and his first mate entered the wide door of the Burt farmhouse.

Never had the great oaken table upheld such a dinner. Mrs. Jasper was temporarily supplanted by a chef from Boston. Rare old plate came, for the first time in John's recollection, from mysterious chests stored away in the attic. Those who surrounded the board never will forget the invocation offered by Peter Burt when he blessed the food. The shadows which darkened his life had all been lifted, and the austere cloud passed from his features as fog before a quickening gale.

Listening in a new coat of paint, the Standish bobbed at the landing when John helped Jessie on board. They had accepted Sam Round's invitation to a clam bake at Churchill's Grove, and Sam asked all his old friends and neighbors. For the first time in the memory of the living generation Peter Burt attended an outing. Under the giant pines he sat with John Hawkins and told and listened to tales of the sea.

The Standish pointed her bow out towards Minor's light, and picked her way between threatening rocks. Under the shadow of Black Reef John dropped the anchor and watched the line until it became taut as the incoming tide swept them near the rocks. Above his head he could see the spot where he had knelt as a boy and listened to Peter Burt while he prayed to the God who ruled the storm. For some minutes no words were spoken.

"Do you remember the last time we were here, Jessie?" he asked.

"Yes, John," without raising her eyes.

"Do you remember what I said to you that day, Jessie?"

"I—I think I do, John." It may have been the reflection of the sun, but a touch of crimson came to her cheeks. "It was a long time ago, John, and perhaps I've forgotten just what you said. Can you repeat it?"

An arm reached out and the little hand was firmly clasped.

"I told you that I loved you, Jessie," he said. The imprisoned hand made no attempt to escape. "I told you that that love was my inspiration; that no woman on earth should share it; that no matter whatever befell you—sunshine or rain, happiness or sorrow—that my ambition was to see you showered with all the blessings God can grant to a good woman; I said that if a day came when I had a right to ask your love in return that I should do so, making no claim on our old friendship. And then you said something, Jessie—do you remember what you said, darling?"

"I said that I wanted you to love me, but not to speak of it again—until I said you could," said Jessie, lifting her laughing eyes. "You can say it again—if you wish to, John."

Two soft arms were around his neck and two sweet lips met his.

"You knew I would wait for you, John, didn't you?"

John Burt's modest mansion stands on the crest of the hill which slopes down to the old farmhouse. It commands a superb view of the crescent sweep of ocean beach, and also of the more quiet beauties of Hingham bay. Verdant terraces and winding paths and roads come to the edge of the yard surrounding the old homestead, but no gardener's hand has been permitted to touch the quaint surroundings, sacred to the ancestral founder of the house of Burt.

In the long summer days Jessie's children play about Peter Burt's knees. Nearly five score years have passed over his head. His shoulders are bent, and the voice falters at times, but his eyes preserve the spark of their wonted fires.

Watched and cared for by those who love him, he calmly awaits the coming of the reaper, into whose garner long since have been gathered the atoms of his generation.

"A few miles away" another mansion fronts the ocean. James Blake and his fair Edith have been blessed with two children and with each other's love. A roguish boy bears the name of John, and a dainty little miss responds to the name of Jessie. James Blake is now in fact as well as in name the head of the great firm so conspicuous in this narrative. In a thousand ways he has merited the confidence reposed in him by John Burt. Generous as yet, almost to a fault, he has acquired with responsibility that breadth of view and pulse of judgment which found its highest expression in the man who made his success possible.

Retiring from active business when most men are making a start, John Burt has devoted his time to the study of seamanship in its purest sense. Political honors have crowded upon him. There are thousands who share the confident faith of his loving wife that the highest place in the gift of the people shall some day crown his career.

There are frequent reunions in the old farmhouse or on the spacious lawns surrounding John Burt's residence. Once a year Sam Rounds superintends a clam bake, and John Hawkins always manages to be present. To the latter's inquiries concerning the future Mrs. Rounds, Sam turns a grinning, untroubled face.

"No man in Rocky Woods is a bachelor until he is way past sixty," Sam declares, "an' I'm spy yet as a colt in clover. Sometimes Ma Rounds is a bit doubtful about my matrimonial chances, but I has hopes; I still has hopes. Edith, may I help you to some more of them clams? Jessie, please pass young Master Burt's plate; it's empty already. How that boy grows! He's coming up like sparrowgrass after a rain."

Mrs. Rounds bustles around, her eyes bright with the joy of being busy.

"You set down, Ma Rounds," commands Sam in a hopeless tone. "You set right down and let us young folks wait on the table. I can't break her of workin', John; I swan, I just can't do nothin' with her. Well," raising a glass of sparkling cider, "here's God bless all good people, an' happy days tew all of ye!"

VELVET WITH LACE AND PLUMES

The velvet-covered shapes which the shops are showing in such wide and artistic variety lend themselves beautifully to the efforts of the amateur milliner. The trimming may be much or little, just as one desires. A smart and favorite combination for a dressy hat, one which will meet with day and evening needs, is in black velvet, the high crown entirely covered with the shirred fabric, while the velvet is stretched plain over the brim. Black Chantilly lace is shirred to fall in fascades and loosely disposed around the crown in several rows, the lower ones falling well to the edge of the brim. This latter fits quite a little at the left side, where a bunch of fluffy white ostrich plumes are posed, this making for a very dressy effect indeed.

RAW PORK KILLS YOUNG WOMAN

Trichinosis Proves Fatal in One Case and Makes Other Persons Sick.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 8.—Mary Flala, aged 21 years, is dead and her father, Joseph Flala, and sister Rose are precariously ill from eating raw chopped pork. Trichinosis was the cause of death and illness. Four weeks ago the members of the Flala family, who reside at 1250 North Pierce street, ate raw pork with vinegar and onions. The sickness that resulted was at first diagnosed as typhoid fever by Dr. John M. Bittel, the symptoms being similar in many respects in both cases. Dr. Bittel says it is estimated that 3 per cent of pork is diseased by the presence of these germs and unless it is thoroughly cooked it should not be eaten.

INTERIOR REPORT.

Department Secretary Tells of Work Performed During Year.

Washington, Dec. 8.—According to the annual report of the secretary of the interior, the last year has been one of much executive achievement in all branches of the service. The reclamation service has been perfected, and under surveys made by it contracts have been let for effectuating the Salt River Irrigation project, Arizona; the Uncompahgre Valley project, Colorado; the Minidoka project in Idaho, and the Truckee Carson project in Nevada, in all twenty-one contracts, covering an expenditure of approximately $2,270,737.23. Nine additional forest reservations have been established.

The laws relating to the protection of the public domain and the timber thereon have been rigidly enforced and a conspiracy entered into between certain persons in California and Arizona looking to the defrauding of the government of a large acreage of public lands has been defeated. The policy of requiring able-bodied Indians to labor for their own support has been adhered to, and is proving more and more beneficial, both to the Indians and the service. A very material increase in the average daily attendance upon Indian schools was noted during the year.

Ambassador May Not Return.

Washington, Dec. 8.—There is much comment in diplomatic circles over the decision of the German ambassador to depart from his post here on the 13th inst. upon an extended leave of absence. Some important reason must prevail to warrant the ambassador leaving on the eve of official receptions, and most of his associates have concluded Baron Sternburg will not return.

Aid for Good Roads.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Senator Lattimer, from the committee on agriculture and forestry, reported favorably the bill known as the "Lattimer good roads bill." Under the provisions of the bill the states are to do the work of construction and pay half of the cost, the national government paying the other half.

ONE WORD IN TIME

Is Better Than Two Afterwards. A Chance to Profit By a Janesville Man's Experience.

It is a strange thing—how people will put away an opportunity until too late; it's only little things that go to make up our every day existence; the trouble is we don't pay sufficient attention to them. Backache is a little thing. Sometimes it comes after a hard day's work or a slight cold. It will pass off, you say; it's only the result of overtaxing my back. It isn't the fault of your back but your kidneys. The exertion or straining has interfered with their delicate mechanism. You call it backache, but it really is kidney ache. If the kidneys are not relieved, chronic disorders set in and this is where the "little thing" should not be passed over. A Janesville man has learned to appreciate what delay means.

Mr. H. W. Rodgers, carpenter of 210 South Main street says "My wife had kidney complaint and rheumatism for five years suffering a great deal from pain across the loins. Doan's Kidney Pills, sold by the People's Drug Co., brought much longed for and gratifying results. First there was no visible change and she came to the conclusion that they were like all other remedies she had tried but finally the aching and the distress in the small of the back disappeared."

IN VELVET AND LACE

The most popular and assuredly the most practical of evening wraps are those that are built upon cape lines. Indeed, many of the best of them can be best described as sleeve capes, so loose and full are they. The model of the picture is in creamy white chiffon velvet, with much Chiny lace and hand-embroidered motifs wrought in chenille threads of pliantly contrasting shades. The lace makes the upper part of the wrap and the sleeves as well, the shoulder portion being continued in stole design down the fronts, where the fastenings are concealed under a mass of plush chiffon ruffles. All around the garment is bordered with the chenille-wrought medallions, these heading a thick chenille fringe; while over the shoulder on either side is posed a Russian sable skin, the little tails and claws hanging over the arm and the head portions meeting in the center of the collar at the back.

MUST SINK THEIR OWN SHIPS

Only Means Left to Prevent Vessels
From Falling Into the Hands of the Japanese When Stoessel Surrenders.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 8.—Foreign telegrams stating that the Japanese have succeeded in mounting heavy guns on 203 Meter hill are regarded as seriously significant and have created a deep depression at the war office. If the reports of the sinking of the Russian warships in the harbor of Port Arthur are confirmed, it destroys the last hope of a sortie, and when the end comes nothing will remain to prevent them from falling into the hands of the enemy but to sink those that lie in deep water.

The war office is unable to identify Akasaka hill. Evidently it is a Japanese name.

The importance of 203 Meter hill to the garrison is evidenced by General Stoessel's desperate efforts to recapture it.

Reports Battleship Sunk.
London, Dec. 8.—A report from Tien-Tsin says that the Japanese shell fire at Port Arthur also sank the Russian battleship Peresviet, but no further news concerning the fortress has reached London.

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent in front of Port Arthur, cabling under date of Dec. 7, says the Russians ceased their attempts to recapture 203 Meter hill Dec. 6. In an uncompleted account of the fighting that preceded the capture of the hill the same correspondent applauds the magnificent defense the Russians made and the clever handling of the defensive forces against the repeated Japanese feints and enveloping movements en masse.

Russian Battleship on Fire.
Tokio, Dec. 8.—Imperial headquarters has made the following announcement: "The result of the bombardment of Port Arthur by four large caliber guns Dec. 7 was very good. Many effective hits were made against the battleships Peresviet and Pobieda and the protected cruiser Pallada. In consequence the Peresviet caught fire and at 2:15 o'clock the Pobieda listed to starboard."

Japs Gain at Port Arthur.
Tokio, Dec. 8.—Japan's army at Port Arthur has made a fresh gain in addition to causing havoc among the Russian fleet in the harbor. The besieging troops occupied Akasaka hill, fronting on Port Arthur, Dec. 6. They also drove the Russian armored cruiser Bayan aground.

The commander of the Japanese naval forces in front of Port Arthur, telegraphing Dec. 6, says: "An observation taken from 203 Meter hill shows that the turretship Poltava is sunk and that the battleship Retvizan is listing heavily to port. Since Dec. 2 we have daily bombarded the enemy's fleet lying south of Palyu mountain. The total of our shells taking effect on the enemy's ships were as follows: On a vessel of the Pobieda type, thirty-four; on the battleship Retvizan, or the cruiser Pallada, thirty-four; on the turretship Poltava, eleven. Besides these, fifty other shells struck, from which explosions followed."

"Dec. 6, at 4 p. m., in response to the bearer of the enemy's flag of truce, an armistice of five hours was granted for the removal of the dead."

HARD WORK TO KILL BEAR.

North Carolina Men Evidently Not the Marksmen Their Fathers Were. Some of the citizens of the Ashland section had a novel experience in killing a big black bear recently. He was discovered passing across the bottoms of the Bushnell plantation about noon, by Alfred Jones, a colored tenant on the place, who notified all the farmers in the neighborhood. A number of men came with their dogs and their guns and proceeded to locate the beast.

The dogs soon struck the track and several of the hunters got within close range at 2 o'clock. Five or six loads were fired into him before he had apparently noticed any onslaught. Firing continued for several hours with slight effect, and several fierce fights between the dogs and the bear occurred, but he apparently made no effort to attack any of the hunters. Late in the afternoon, after considerable dodging in a thick swamp, he climbed a large tree. Several shots were fired at him from below, and he went out on a limb which was so small it broke under his weight.

When he fell to the ground Mr. Ed Harrill was at very close range and got a good aim at a point just below the heart, which ended the conflict. Mr. Summers, who sent for his wagon, carried the bear to the nearest scales and found that he weighed 267 pounds.—Charlotte Observer.

High-Priced Real Estate.
The highest-priced real estate in London is near the Bank of England. Land sells there at the rate of $375 a square foot—$16,250,000 an acre. From this center the price diminishes in a receding tide, rising again in the Strand to a price of from $60 to $100 a square foot. In Bond street, in the West End, a still higher price of $175 a square foot, or more than $7,500,000 an acre, has been reached.

Gold vs. Wheat.
The greatest hoard of the yellow metal ever gathered in any country could not buy one year's harvest of the American corn and wheat. To buy one season's wheat crop would take all the gold mined in this country in six years. In the last seven years all the gold mines have produced only enough to buy one year's yield of our six leading cereals.
